CII/THC/N1104: Professionalism and Numeracy Skills for Hospitality

Description

This NOS covers the application of basic mathematical principles and effective communication skills in hospitality operations. It includes numerical concepts such as percentages, unit conversions, recipe scaling, and cost calculations for efficient inventory and service management. The NOS also emphasizes verbal and non-verbal communication, active listening, and professional interaction with guests and team members. Additionally, it highlights the importance of cultural awareness, emotional understanding, and positive communication practices to ensure smooth operations and enhanced guest satisfaction.

Scope

The scope covers the following :

- The learner will be able to apply basic mathematical concepts such as percentages, unit conversions, and cost calculations in hospitality operations including recipe adjustment, inventory management, and pricing. The scope also includes developing effective verbal and non-verbal communication skills, active listening, and professional interaction with guests and colleagues. The learner will interpret communication cues, adapt to different cultural contexts, and use appropriate language and behavior to ensure clear communication, teamwork, and high-quality customer service in hospitality environments.

Elements and Performance Criteria

Application of Mathematical Principles

To be competent, the user/individual on the job must be able to:

- PC1. Identify and categorize different types of numbers, including whole numbers, fractions, decimals, and percentages, and explain the principles of elementary arithmetic such as addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division.
- PC2. Examine and calculate the relationship between percentages, applying this understanding to hospitality operations like service charges or discounts
- PC3. Identify and differentiate between various calculation units, such as weight (grams, kilograms), volume (liters, milliliters), and currency, while converting between them as needed for inventory and recipe adjustments
- PC4. Distinguish between gross and net weight, demonstrating how these concepts apply to recipe costing and portion control
- PC5. Use the rule of three to calculate proportional quantities, such as adjusting recipes or portions based on guest count or requirements
- PC6. Accurately use arithmetic language, symbols, and notation in tasks like pricing, inventory calculations, and recipe adjustments
- PC7. Apply different calculation units in real-life scenarios, transforming them appropriately for various operations, including converting units for cooking or service needs
- PC8. Adjust cooking recipes for specific quantities or number of guests, ensuring the correct scaling of ingredients to meet operational demands

Confederation of Indian Industry

- PC9. Calculate the cost of a recipe, incorporating both gross and net weights of ingredients, to ensure accurate financial planning and inventory management
- PC10. Apply basic mathematical concepts to F&B operations, such as determining serving sizes, pricing menus, and calculating waste percentages
- PC11. Recognize the importance of mathematics in daily life and hospitality operations, particularly in inventory management, cost control, and operational efficiency
- PC12. Exhibit mathematical curiosity and reasoning when solving real-life problems in the hospitality industry, demonstrating confidence in handling tasks that involve calculations.

Verbal and Non-verbal Communication

To be competent, the user/individual on the job must be able to:

- PC13. Explain the principles of verbal and non-verbal communication, including how they differ and complement each other in professional and personal interactions.
- PC14. Identify and interpret verbal and non-verbal communication cues when interacting with customers and colleagues, demonstrating an understanding of how these cues influence communication dynamics.
- PC15. Describe the concept of active listening and its role in effective communication, ensuring that responses are thoughtful and relevant to the conversation.
- PC16. Analyze the communication styles of various cultures, recognizing how cultural differences impact verbal and non-verbal communication in a hospitality setting
- PC17. Examine different sources of stress and anxiety in communication, identifying how these factors can affect the clarity and effectiveness of both verbal and non-verbal communication.
- PC18. Express oneself in a professional tone with appropriate decorum, adapting verbal communication to suit different contexts, such as customer service interactions or team discussions.
- PC19. Demonstrate effective use of verbal and non-verbal communication cues, including body language, facial expressions, and gestures, to enhance the clarity and reception of messages.
- PC20. Apply communication best practices when interacting with customers and colleagues, using clear language, maintaining eye contact, and ensuring respectful body language.

English Essentials

To be competent, the user/individual on the job must be able to:

- PC21. Examine the emotions and reactions of customers and colleagues by analyzing their verbal and non-verbal cues, and adjust communication strategies accordingly to maintain positive interactions
- PC22. Recognize the importance of effective verbal and non-verbal communication in maintaining smooth operations within hotel and restaurant environments, particularly in customer service and team coordination.
- PC23. Explain the benefits of positive communication practices in hospitality operations, such as building rapport with guests, fostering teamwork, and enhancing overall service quality.
- PC24. Acknowledge personal limitations in verbal and non-verbal communication and actively seek to improve, recognizing areas for development, such as tone, body language, or active listening skills.

CII/THC/N1105: Food & Beverage and Room Service Operations

Description

This NOS covers the application of basic mathematical principles and effective verbal and non-verbal communication in hospitality operations. It enables learners to perform calculations related to pricing, inventory, and recipe adjustments, while also developing the ability to communicate professionally with customers and colleagues, ensuring smooth service delivery and operational efficiency.

Scope

The scope covers the following :

- The learner will be able to execute Food & Beverage service operations across banquet and room service settings, including setup, service delivery, and guest handling as per SOPs. The role involves understanding service excellence principles, delivering personalized guest experiences, managing customer interactions and complaints, and coordinating across service touchpoints to ensure high levels of customer satisfaction and delight

Elements and Performance Criteria

Execution of Food & Beverage services

To be competent, the user/individual on the job must be able to:

- PC1. Demonstrate a thorough understanding of fundamental F&B service techniques used in various service operations
- PC2. Introduce and explain the concept of banquets and their operations
- PC3. Carry out different types of banquet setups in accordance with event requirements.
- PC4. Understand and manage the documentation process for banquet operations, including checklists and order sheets.
- PC5. Perform different types of services during banquet operations, adapting to the style and structure of the event.
- PC6. Understand the scope and structure of room service operations in the hospitality industry.
- PC7. Demonstrate room service techniques, ensuring timely and professional service.
- PC8. Execute room service operations, from taking orders to delivering food, while maintaining high service standards.
- PC9. Resolve common issues and handle complaints effectively during room service operations.
- PC10. Deliver room service orders directly to guest rooms, ensuring accuracy and promptness.

Customer Service Excellence

To be competent, the user/individual on the job must be able to:

- PC11. Discuss and develop an understanding of Service Excellence.
- PC12. Explain the four rules of Great Service.
- PC13. Identify and explain the key ingredients of good service that take customer experience from good to great.
- PC14. Develop an understanding of Customer Satisfaction and Customer Delight.

Confederation of Indian Industry

Qualification Pack

- PC15. Identify the difference between Customer Satisfaction and Delight and perform actions to secure Customer Delight.
- PC16. Describe what personalized service means and why it is important
- PC17. Identify and list the essential elements of guest service.
- PC18. Get to know your customer, build relationships, and understand their needs and expectations.
- PC19. Offer relevant solutions to customer needs and problems.
- PC20. Build a system to collect customer needs and service information and let employees collect information for that.
- PC21. Prepare a database to track information such as guest preferences, frequency of visits, and issues that have come up for guests during their previous stays.
- PC22. Describe different guest touchpoints of each department and outline why every department is important.
- PC23. Identify the opportunity in every department to delight the customer with outstanding service.

Knowledge and Understanding (KU)

The individual on the job needs to know and understand:

- KU1. Fundamentals of F&B service, including banquet and room service operations and service techniques.
- KU2. Banquet setup types, service styles, and operational documentation (checklists, order sheets).
- KU3. Room service procedures, order handling, delivery standards, and complaint resolution.
- KU4. Principles of service excellence, customer satisfaction, and customer delight.
- KU5. Personalized service, guest expectations, and relationship-building techniques.
- KU6. Guest data management, service touchpoints, and use of customer information systems.

Generic Skills (GS)

User/individual on the job needs to know how to:

- GS1. Deliver professional and timely service in banquet and room service operations.
- GS2. Communicate effectively with guests to understand needs and provide solutions.
- GS3. Coordinate with team members across departments for seamless service delivery.
- GS4. Maintain attention to detail, service standards, and continuous improvement.

CII/THC/N1106: Food & Beverage Service and Inventory Operations

Description

This NOS covers the knowledge and skills required to perform Food & Beverage (F&B) service operations and manage inventory effectively within a hospitality environment. It includes understanding service equipment, menu planning, pricing, and upselling techniques, along with the application of inventory management practices such as stock control, storage, purchasing, and waste management. The role also emphasizes adherence to hygiene standards, food safety regulations, and efficient use of resources to ensure smooth operations and profitability.

Scope

The scope covers the following :

- This NOS enables the learner to develop the knowledge and skills required to perform key Food & Beverage (F&B) operations, including handling banqueting, restaurant, room service, and bar setups while using appropriate equipment and service protocols. The learner will understand menu planning, pricing, billing, and upselling techniques to enhance customer satisfaction and revenue. It also equips the learner with competencies in inventory management such as storage, stock rotation (FIFO, LIFO, FEFO), procurement, and documentation. Additionally, the learner will be able to maintain hygiene and food safety standards, follow HACCP guidelines, manage waste responsibly, and ensure efficient and sustainable F&B operations.

Elements and Performance Criteria

F&B Department Operations

To be competent, the user/individual on the job must be able to:

- PC1. Identify and understand banqueting operations and the service equipment required.
- PC2. Identify essential restaurant service equipment and its uses.
- PC3. Identify room service equipment and perform a room service setup.
- PC4. Understand and apply room service protocols, including the proper methods for clearance.
- PC5. Identify the prices for different services within F&B operations, ensuring accurate billing.
- PC6. Identify overhead costs in F&B operations and their impact on profitability.
- PC7. Understand the principles behind menu planning and pricing to optimize sales and customer satisfaction.
- PC8. Utilize upselling techniques to promote and sell high-priced menu items effectively.
- PC9. Identify the equipment necessary for bar service and execute standard bar setups.
- PC10. Identify and use essential bartending tools efficiently.

Inventory Management for F&B

To be competent, the user/individual on the job must be able to:

- PC11. Identify storage and receiving areas in F&B Service based on specific requirements for different food categories.
- PC12. Execute the F&B Service operation by applying FIFO, LIFO, and FEFO methods during inventory management.

Confederation of Indian Industry

Qualification Pack

- PC13. Understand the temperature and humidity requirements for the storage of various perishable and non-perishable items.
- PC14. Maintain proper stock levels by conducting timely checks and ensuring stock rotation to prevent spoilage and wastage.
- PC15. Demonstrate knowledge of basic hygiene protocols in F&B operations, ensuring personal and food safety practices are followed.
- PC16. Execute the inventory management process by recording incoming and outgoing goods using relevant documentation.
- PC17. Place orders and manage purchasing based on stock levels, seasonal needs, and F&B service requirements.
- PC18. Receive goods and inspect deliveries to ensure compliance with purchase orders and quality standards.
- PC19. Implement waste separation and recycling processes according to local guidelines and organizational policies.
- PC20. Identify techniques to reduce food wastage during storage, preparation, and service operations.
- PC21. Manage the disposal of hazardous and non-hazardous waste safely to minimize environmental impact.
- PC22. Monitor and update inventory levels to avoid overstocking or understocking, ensuring operational efficiency.
- PC23. Utilize proper labeling and coding techniques to organize F&B goods systematically in storage areas.
- PC24. Ensure compliance with food safety regulations during the entire goods management process, including HACCP guidelines.

Knowledge and Understanding (KU)

The individual on the job needs to know and understand:

- KU1. F&B operations across banquet, restaurant, room service, and bar, including equipment and service setups
- KU2. Menu planning, pricing, overhead costs, and upselling techniques.
- KU3. Inventory management methods (FIFO, LIFO, FEFO), stock control, and documentation.
- KU4. Storage requirements, labeling, and handling of perishable and non-perishable items.
- KU5. Purchasing, receiving, inspection, and supplier coordination.
- KU6. Hygiene standards, food safety (HACCP), and waste management practices.

Generic Skills (GS)

User/individual on the job needs to know how to:

- GS1. Perform F&B service tasks efficiently while maintaining quality and standards.
- GS2. Communicate effectively and coordinate with team members.

CII/THC/N1107: Fundamentals of Oenology and Hygiene Standards

Description

This NOS covers the foundational knowledge of oenology, including wine history, grape varieties, wine regions, and winemaking processes, along with the role of wine in hospitality operations. It also includes competencies related to maintaining hygiene, sanitation, and occupational health standards in hospitality environments. The role focuses on safe handling practices, compliance with health regulations, and ensuring a clean, safe, and professional workplace

The scope covers the following :

- The learner will be able to understand the basics of wine, including its origin, production, and service relevance in hospitality, while maintaining hygiene and occupational health standards across operations. The role involves applying sanitation practices, handling cleaning agents safely, ensuring compliance with safety protocols, and supporting a clean and healthy work environment.

Elements and Performance Criteria

Basics of Oenology

To be competent, the user/individual on the job must be able to:

- PC1. Understand the history of wines and its evolution over time.
- PC2. Explain the importance of terroir and the key factors required for winemaking, such as climate, soil, and geography.
- PC3. Identify wine-producing countries, differentiating between Old World (e.g., France, Italy) and New World (e.g., USA, Australia) wine regions.
- PC4. Identify different types of red grape varieties used in red wine production.
- PC5. Identify different types of grape varieties used in white wine production.
- PC6. Understand the winemaking process from growing grapes to the harvesting phase.
- PC7. Understand the wine making process from crushing the grapes to bottling the wine.
- PC8. Explain the wine-making process for white and rosé wines
- PC9. Understand the history of Champagne and describe its production process.
- PC10. Identify the importance of wines in restaurant operations and their role in enhancing the dining experience.
- PC11. Recognize the roles and importance of a Wine Sommelier in a restaurant setting.
- PC12. Identify and differentiate between various types of wine glasses and their appropriate use.

Hygiene and Occupational Health Practices

To be competent, the user/individual on the job must be able to:

- PC13. Maintain high standards of personal hygiene, including regular handwashing and the correct use of personal protective equipment (PPE)
- PC14. Perform cleaning and sanitization tasks following established hygiene protocols to ensure a clean and safe environment

Confederation of Indian Industry

Qualification Pack

- PC15. Follow all relevant health and safety regulations applicable to hotel operations to ensure compliance and safety
- PC16. Use cleaning agents and disinfectants according to manufacturer instructions to achieve effective sanitation while safeguarding personal health
